

GREATEST SIGHT OF THE CENTURY

Pope Leo's 25th Anniversary of Enthronement Brings Thousands of Pilgrims to Rome.

ST. PETER'S FILLED

Sixty-Five Thousand People Crowd Inside the Cathedral To Witness the Ceremony.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.) Rome, March 3.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the enthronement of Pope Leo was celebrated today in a torrential downpour of rain. Despite the adverse weather conditions, crowds jammed the piazza of St. Peter's for hours before the doors were opened. Italian soldiers had their hands full keeping the mass of enthusiasts in order and when the relinquished their control at the very door edifice the papal troops had a difficult task to keep the rushing crowd from a veritable stampede for seats.

Sixty Thousand
Sixty-five thousand pilgrims and other visitors found standing room inside of St. Peter's while the tribunes especially erected for the purpose was filled with one of the most notable crowds Rome has ever seen.

Rich Decorations
The interior of the cathedral presented a richly brilliant spectacle. The massive pillars were heavily draped in red silk brocade with gold edges while the whole dome scintillated with light reflected from innumerable crystal chandeliers.

State Procession
The state procession entered from the Vatican in the usual order, silver trumpets pealing salute to them. There was in the procession the largest number of cardinals ever seen at one time in a quarter of a century.

Pope Appears
As the pope was borne aloft and brought in, his white robes swaying amid waving of peacock fans the crowds burst forth in a deafening shout, "Long live the pope."

Immense Crowds
The crowd inside the cathedral was so dense that several exciting incidents happened one was caused by a woman in the gallery fainting and falling knocked against several others with such force as to precipitate them on the heads, those on the bench below.

The Service
The service consisted of high pontifical mass and a tedeum. Forty-four cardinals, 315 bishops, representing the whole world were present. For half an hour during the time the ceremony was in progress all the church in Rome tolled bells.

Pope Looked Better
The pope looked better than he has for a fortnight past though his face was pale and his voice hoarse. Before leaving his apartment this morning he was in his usual health.

SPECIAL CROP REPORT SHOWS LITTLE INJURY

Snow Covered the Fields in the Central District of Illinois and Afforded Protection.

Springfield, Ill., March 3.—The special crop bulletin for February, says: "A limited acreage of wheat is sown. The crop is making a good showing. In the central district it is very even. The fields were well covered with snow during the rigorous weather and no injury ensued. The condition of the rye crop is very favorable. Clover, meadows and pastures are all in a thrifty state. A considerable amount of corn that was cut and shocked last fall is now moldy and some losses will ensue. A large stock of corn and oats remains unmarketed on account of the scarcity of cars to move the crop."

"Some reports indicate injury to peach buds, while others report the fruit uninjured."

"The general condition of stock is good and feed is plentiful."

"Wheat in the southern district is not satisfactory. A conservative estimate places the crop in a fair condition. The injury has been sustained from freezing and thawing."

New York, March 3.—A remarkable scene was enacted in the Sunday school of the Alms Street Presbyterian church. Emma Rausch, 9 years old, left home for Sunday school. On the way she bought a penny whistling balloon. This she took into her class, and while inflating it for the amusement of her mates the wooden mouthpiece slipped into her throat.

Charles Follett, superintendent of the school and a trustee of the church, worked to extricate the toy from the throat of the fast choking child but failed.

Physicians were hastily summoned but they could not extract the toy. When they announced that death was near the Rev. R. S. Dawson raised his hand and asked that all kneel and pray.

The child's parents, who had been sent for, entered as the clergyman was about to begin his prayer. The meaning was clear to them, and they knelt sobbing beside their child. The body was carried into an adjoining room, and a memorial service took the place of the regular Sunday school exercises.

FIND BODY OF KNAPP'S THIRD WIFE IN RIVER

Corpse Discovered Near New Albany, Ind., Furnishes Basis for Trial of the Modern Bluebeard.

Hamilton, O., March 3.—The body of Hannah Goddard Knapp, the third wife of the Indianapolis Bluebeard, was found floating in the Ohio river near New Albany, Ind. A gold band was found on the left hand and in the ears were earrings as described by the prisoner. The body has been in the water several weeks, and it is thought that the box which Knapp claimed to have used may have been broken. This gives a tangible basis for trial here and removes from the authorities the difficulty of proving a case of murder from the prisoner's rambling and semibonafide statements.

When shown the dispatch from New Albany, Ind., about the finding of the body of his wife the prisoner showed little surprise.

Alfred A. Knapp was arraigned before Mayor Bosch. He was not handcuffed and was treated with consideration.

Before the arraignment he sat quietly in the police court, chatting with the officers. He was talkative and told the story of how a horse kicked him on the head when he was a year old.

Mayor Bosch explained to the prisoner his rights and asked him to plead. "Not guilty," Knapp said.

Asked if he wished a preliminary hearing Knapp said: "I suppose I might as well."

Mrs. Wenzel then arose and explained that no attorney had been yet engaged for Knapp and she would arrange for counsel and notify the authorities here at once of his plea. Knapp was taken back to the jail as quietly as he left it.

SOLE SURVIVOR REACHES LAND

Nineteen Lives Have Been Lost on the Cambrian Prince in Mid-ocean.

(Special By Scripps-McLain.)

Hamburg, March 3.—A sailor named Hellsten, the sole survivor of the twenty men of the British steamer Cambrian Prince, from Coquimbó, Nov. 21, for Middleborough; which was wrecked in the North Sea Feb. 27, was landed here by the British steamer Claverling, which rescued him from the boat. His rescue was effected with difficulty, owing to the high sea running at the time.

Hellsten says that the Cambrian Prince was unable to make Middleborough owing to the severe weather, and was driven hither and thither at the mercy of the waves for six days.

Cargo Shifts.

On the morning of Feb. 27, while the wind was blowing almost with hurricane force, an enormous sea hit the steamer and suddenly bore it down to such an angle that the cargo of iron ore shifted. This prevented the vessel from righting itself, the succeeding seas completely overturning the steamer, and it sank in a few minutes.

Hellsten and four others scrambled into a small iron lifeboat and succeeded in casting off and getting away from the sinking vessel. The boat contained no provisions and nothing with which to bale it. The seas continually swamped the small boat, washing its occupants out.

Leaps Into the Sea.

They righted the boat and clambered into it several times, but eventually, one after another, they became exhausted by the struggle in the icy water until three men were lost.

Another went mad from his sufferings and leaped into the sea and was drowned.

The storm gradually subsided. Hellsten drifted for twenty-six hours with nothing to eat or drink and in an agony of suspense. When he sighted the Claverling he was almost totally exhausted. He tried to shout and waved his hands feebly. Those on the steamer saw the boat, bore down on it, and finally got Hellsten aboard.

Small Parish, Indeed.

LEAF INDUSTRY IS AT CLIMAX

L. B. CARLE BELIEVES TOBACCO BUSINESS AT LIMIT.

AVAILABLE EMPLOYEES UTILIZED

New Men Come In, But Old Branch Out, Keeping Balance the Same.

"Janesville, I think, is as large a tobacco center as it will ever be," said L. B. Carle yesterday afternoon. "New men are coming from time to time and building their warehouses, but the old men are branching out."

Mr. Carle expressed this opinion in the course of a conversation regarding Janesville's manufacturing prospects. He had outlined a policy which he believed the city should follow, and from that the subject naturally shifted to a discussion of the industry in which he is so actively engaged. Any utterance of his in regard to the tobacco interests of the state would have weight among the growers and buyers of Wisconsin, and his remark can probably be accepted as in a high degree prophetic.

All Labor Utilized

Scarcely of labor is one of the conditions on which Mr. Carle founded his statement. This city has at present, on a conservative estimate, using his figures, one thousand persons employed in the tobacco warehouses of the city. It might even be safe to say that there are one thousand women and girls employed. At that the available supply is exhausted. If there should be a great enough growth in the warehouses of the city to require a larger force, the employees would not be forthcoming.

Another item that will tend, Mr. Carle believes, to keep Janesville from growing as a tobacco center is the fact that it is situated on the edge of the tobacco district. The branches which are being established by local leaf men are in cities and towns to the north.

Will Remain Prominent

Not that the city will lose its present prominence. Its reputation has been too firmly established to allow any falling off. But the city has enough warehouses just as it is, and does a big enough business to meet the situation.

So much for the tobacco industry. In connection with the general factory question Mr. Carle said that he believed the city should pursue a policy of adding one or two every year. There should be enough manufacturing plants to employ the young people of the city the year round at fair wages. To give employment to all at good wages, said Mr. Carle, is the basis of civilization.

The Tax Question

On the question of taxes, the alleged bugbear of prospective investors in Janesville property, Mr. Carle made no decided statement. Taxes should be low, he said, because a manufacture must figure on the possibility of sinking his plant. An old factory is practically worthless. It is the most difficult property for which to secure a purchaser. The lower cotton mills give local proof of this.

But high taxes are very difficult to escape. Every citizen has his individual idea of the needs of the city, his hobby which he is always working for. When the council grants the request for improvements from this person, and that, and the other, the aggregate amounts to a good sized sum. And all of them may be right in their demands.

BOWL AT BELOIT TOMORROW NIGHT

City Team Will Go to That City for a Match with the Line City Team.

A Janesville bowling team will go to Beloit tomorrow evening. Robert Hockett has announced the match with the Line City players as definitely arranged. Nothing except an eleven-hour change of plans among the Beloit bowlers can alter the arrangements now made. The personnel of Janesville's team is still undetermined, and probably will be until the day of the match, much depending on the ability of the different players to take the trip. Several of the most consistent bowlers expect to be kept in the city by business.

BELOIT GAME MAY CLOSE THE SEASON

Line City High School Team to Play Here This Week at High School.

It is very likely that this week's contest will bring the high school basketball season to a close. Coach Norris today made final arrangements with Beloit high school as the opposing team for the match which will probably be the last which a Janesville audience will be able to witness this year. A game with Madison high school was under consideration for a time, but Monday Athletic Director Norris notified that institution that the locals were not open for a game with them.

Friday is the day set for the Beloit match. It will be held here in the high school gymnasium. After their victory over Carroll college the team fell ready for whatever may come, and hope to at least give Coach Porter's proteges from the Line City a close rub. Thus far this season the locals have a percentage of .625, having won five of the eight games played.

MUCH MOVING IS BEING DONE NOW

Beginning of Migration Foretakens the Coming of Spring—Same in City and Country.

Spring is coming. If other proof is lacking witness the movers. Furniture vans, lumber wagons, and capacious hay racks are being pressed into service on every balmy day. In lack of balmy weather any old weather is made to answer, provided only that there is neither rain, snow, or uproarious blast.

Yesterday was a notable instance. Migration from several of the downtown blocks was in progress. Whether in order to escape the tortures of spring cleaning, or for some less patent reason a number of households transferred their earthly possessions from the flats which they had hitherto occupied to new places of abode.

In the country the same rule prevails. Read the news which the Gazette correspondents from all corners of the county are telling. From almost every town some family has departed and another taken its place. The epidemic has been gathering force for several weeks past. Spring brook has felt the force of it to a certain extent, Johnson's Creek having contributed new Janesville citizens.

CONGENIAL TWENTY WELL ENTERTAINED

Ladies of the Club Were the Guests of Misses Kittie and Minnie Bennett.

Misses Kittie and Minnie Bennett entertained the members of the Congenial Twenty club at their home, 201 Milton avenue, yesterday afternoon, the session being one of the most delightful which the club has enjoyed this season. This club always combines study and pleasure at all of its meetings, the study hour being first on the afternoon's program.

The club is now engaged in the study of current events and each member contributes something to the program. After the current events yesterday afternoon the ladies found pleasure in a new game called the author's carnival. Questions were asked to be answered with the names of well known authors and in this literary contest Mrs. Albert T. Kemmett proved the most proficient, winning the prize.

The color scheme for the social part of the afternoon was yellow, ribbons and beautiful golden daffodils being placed at each place during the luncheon which followed the games. The refreshments were especially delicious and additional relish was given by the daffodils, pretty promises of the coming spring.

The Congenial Twenty will hold their next meeting with Mrs. W. G. Palmer at her home, 152 South Jackson street.

There are generally about one hundred ladies present.

A REMARKABLE PIONEER

Volney Atwood is Bright and Active At Ninety-One Years of Age.

Volney Atwood, one of the earliest pioneers of this city, observed the ninety-first anniversary of his birth Saturday in a quiet way at his home, 51 South Franklin street. There was no formal celebration but a number of his friends called to extend congratulations and in the evening there was a family reunion. Mr. Atwood retains his strength to a remarkable degree although he has grown feeble quite fast since his wife's death last summer. He has had no serious illness this winter and his mental faculties are bright and clear. He is a splendid conversationalist and his reminiscences of this city's early history are very interesting.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville, Daily Gazette, Tuesday, March 3, 1863—The capture of the gunboat Indianola, by the rebels is confirmed by the dispatch of Admiral Porter, who censures the commander for not carrying out his instructions. It looks as the rebels are better prepared to meet our gunboats below Vicksburg than has been supposed. The little resistance made to their passage has been a matter of surprise and comment, but if we send our boats down one at a time and they are captured, we need not anticipate much difficulty in running by batteries at Vicksburg. Perhaps however, our naval commanders have learned enough by past experience to avoid disasters of the kind in the future.

The resignation of Gen. Sigel will be regretted by the whole country. No reason is given but it may be supposed to be the same which has made

COMPLETE PLANS FOR MOCK TRIAL

WILL BE HELD AT HIGH SCHOOL TOMORROW EVENING

BEFORE RUSK LYCEUM COURT

Harry Jones Is To Be Tried for Lack of School Spirit—Many Witnesses to Testify.

On tomorrow evening at the High school building, Harry Jones, a High school student, will be put on trial before the court of the Rusk Lyceum for lack of school spirit. The regular meeting of the Lyceum will be devoted to the mock trial for which preparations have been in progress for some time. It will be an open meeting to the extent that each member of the Lyceum is privileged to bring two guests with him.

Henry Skavlen will preside as the judge and Harry Doran as the clerk of the court and Clayton Fisher as chief of police. A jury of six good men and true will be impaneled on the night of the trial.

Strong Arguments Prepared

The attorneys who have been chosen to conduct the case have spent much time on the collecting of evidence and the preparation of their arguments. Both have consulted members of the state bar, who have given advice and assistance as counsel and both claim that they must surely secure the verdict.

Foundation of Case

The incident on which the charge against Jones is based occurred on the basketball game with the Burlington High school, played in this city. Jones, three fellow students and four young ladies went to Beloit on that occasion, this fact being conceded by the defense.

The prosecution expects to prove that the trip was purely a pleasure one and that Jones was lacking in loyalty to the school or he would have attended the game instead. The defense will attempt to prove that the visit to Beloit was made on school business and that Jones was doing his duty by the school in sacrificing his personal desire to attend the game.

Attorneys and Witnesses

Stow Loveloy is the prosecuting attorney and he has subpoenaed as witnesses Clarence Van Beynum, Grove Pomeroy, Walter Carle, Harry Doran, Roger Wiggins and Harold Smith.

The attorney for the defendant is Russell Zeininger and he will be supported by the testimony of Coach William Norris, Max Miltmore, Roy Waters, George Searcliff, George Callow, Thomas Casey, Will Curtiss and John Roberty.

Must Take Genuine Oath

The oath which the witnesses will be required to take will not be a mock oath. They will be sworn to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing at the truth. The object of this is to make it more difficult for the lawyers to prove their side of the case than it would be if the witnesses were allowed to manufacture evidence.

posed to be the same which has made Gen. Sigel's position so uncomfortable ever since he was ordered to report at Washington, and that is the insolent treatment of Gen. Halleck. This latter officer considers it a part of his duty to insult or treat with neglect and coldness all officers who do not agree with him in his pro-slavery opinions, or who are not his favorites for other reasons.

We have been telling the democratic party these many years that the southern aristocrats despise them, and that slavery is the natural foe of all free institutions, but notwithstanding the palpableness of the fact, and the abuse that has been heaped upon them, they still cling to the south, even in its treason. Such servility and want of spirit never was before recorded in the history of the human race.

NEW LAUNCHES ON RIVER THIS YEAR

Boat Building Going On in Many Parts of City for the Coming Season.

With the approach of spring preparations are being made for a busier season on the waters of Rock river than ever before. It is said that in various parts of the city a number of new launches, gasoline and otherwise, are being built, several having been already completed. To the already large number of pleasure craft a number of new boats, speedier, more comfortably equipped, and on more handsome line, are to be added.

Devotees of the water sport say that in proportion to its population Janesville will have a greater number of small pleasure boats in service than any other inland city in the city which has not the resources of a large lake or other body of water better suited to navigation for recreation's sake than is the Rock river.

Boatmen in some parts of the city are already beginning to overhaul their launches for the open season. Defective parts of the propelling apparatus, torn and worn cushions, and paintless ribs all come in for attention. Gaping seams and the leaks that were allowed to slip through last summer unheeded for are looked after now.

C. C. Seales, Sam Stone and Chas. LaPoint are a few of the owners of new launches this season.

Mrs. Anita's Buckwheat has a world wide reputation on account of its purity and genuine buckwheat flavor. Don't forget the name.

TOLD OF CAUSES OF REFORMATION

MISS KELLOGG LECTURED TO THE MONDAY CLUB.

MARTIN LUTHER'S INFLUENCE

Abuses Practiced by Papal Power in Rome, Aroused the Indignation of Germany.

Conditions in Germany preceding the Reformation and Luther's part in that great religious movement were the subject on which Miss Louise Phelps Kellogg, of Madison, spoke before the Monday club at their meeting last evening.

Causes of Reformation
The first part of the intensely interesting lecture was devoted to an account of the abuses which aroused the people against the pope. Among the practices over which the people became indignant was the conferring of bishoprics on favorites. Sometimes one man held thirty or forty from which he collected taxes, making a system of absentee landlordism. England and France having strong central governments defied the pope to a certain extent and Germany became the prey of the rapacity of the pope. Another form of abuse which existed lay in the fact that any one in the church or in the employ of a churchman could not be tried for any crime in the regular courts. The ecclesiastical courts did not condemn to death and the worst criminals south to become servants of churchmen in order to escape justice.

Taxation Abuses
Church lands were exempted from taxation, the revenues from church property going into the church coffers and then to the pope. The exaction of the pope for one hundred years before the reformation had been enormous. Every means was used to extort money from the people, the pope was the wealthiest monarch and his court a luxurious one. This was the origin of the system of indulgences. The theological theory was that a man who was thoroughly repentant and had been absolved by the priesthood, might by paying a sum of money for charity be freed from the penance. On this theory the pope built up the system of indulgences. It the pope wanted to raise money, a sale of indulgences was ordered.

A Financial Revolt
The reformation was a financial revolt against the papal practice of extorting money from people who could not spare it. Because of the immorality in the church the people despised the monks and clergymen as hypocrites. For all the pope claimed to be the head of the church and ruler for the spiritual good of the people, they knew he was a prince, a temporal ruler who was working to support his own states.

Pope a Politician
It was because the pope was a prince and interested in Italian politics that the reformation was able to proceed so far without being crushed and the heretics punished as had been the case in former revolts. For political reasons and because he feared that Charles V, emperor of Germany was getting too powerful, the pope secretly aided the Lutherans when he was thundering invectives against them as heretics.

The reformation was a national movement. Underneath it was the desire of the German people to see their nation united and freed from a foreign ruler. Yet it was a curious fact that the reformation hindered the formation of the nation because it was restricted to certain principles.

Among the steps which led up to the reformation was the fact that Luther was a peasant, a man who understood the people. He was a man of tremendous intellectual force and of great moral and religious earnestness. He was forced step by step in his work. A side of his character which it is hard for people of modern times to understand was his vindictiveness against those who did not agree with him.

While tolerance and individual liberty of conscience were not desired during the reformation still the present Christian charity might not have been possible without the reformation.

Luther a Churchman
As a young man, Luther was a devout churchman. He entered the church against the wishes of his father. It was the sale of indulgences, which aroused him against the pope. In his studies he found no reference to such a right and he drew up for discussion the famous ninety-five theses with which he put a match to a conflagration which astonished him.

The people, already exasperated, rose up in support of the bold monk who challenged the right of the church. Leo X, the pope had no appreciation of the gravity of the situation and when he finally realized it he decided to issue a bull of excommunication which should end it all. When Luther burned it publicly, the pope began to realize that something serious was occurring.

He ordered Frederick the Wise, of Saxony, to suppress the revolt but Frederick sympathized with Luther. Then he appealed to Charles V who called the famous Diet of Worms and ordered Luther to recant. After his refusal Luther was allowed to go free but the people were commanded not to give him food or water.

His Masterly Translation
Friends spirited Luther away to a castle where he was concealed for a year and while there he gave his greatest service to the world in his remarkable translation of the Bible. In conclusion Miss Kellogg described a work of art which stands in the plaza at Worms and which represents the spirit of the reformation. Grouped with Luther as the central figure are his three predecessors, Savanarola, John Huss and Wicliffe, the three princes who stood by him and the three cities which represent three epochs in the Protestant movement.

A Layman's Lenten Sermon

Sixth day of Lent; St. Matthew xli:24.—Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field:

But while he slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat and went his way.

But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also.

So the servants of the householder came and said unto him: Sir, dost thou not sow good seeds in thy field? from whence then hath it tares?

He said unto them: An enemy hath done this. The servants said unto him: Wilt thou that we shall go and gather them up?

But he said nay; lest while you gather up the tares you root up also the wheat with them.

Let both grow together until the harvest, and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers: Gather ye first the tares in bundles to burn them, then the wheat.

Thus did Christ tell His early followers the meaning of his teachings of heaven and the temptations of every day life. He spoke to them in simple parables that they might all understand and not go away half satisfied. In this He made clear to the simple people who surrounded Him the great things that came of God and the great benefits that accrued to the dearly beloved children upon earth.

Let this Lenten time be a time for study for you. Let you search out your minds and find whether the tares have been sown in the field of your understanding and whether they have grown up and choked the good grains of wheat. For Christ said: Let them grow together until the harvest and in the time of the harvest I will say unto the reapers: Gather ye together the tares in bundles to burn them but the good wheat gather into my barn.

lowers the meaning of his teachings of heaven and the temptations of every day life. He spoke to them in simple parables that they might all understand and not go away half satisfied. In The Athletic World

Track Work in Earnest
From now on it will be the hardest kind of practice for the track and the field men. The indoor meet season is on in earnest, and it will not be long before the runners will be able to abandon the padded track for the cinder, and the field men desert the gym for the open air.

Saturday's indoor meets demonstrated little save the fact, which was already suspected, that this season will be a record smasher. From the standpoint of the statistics made the big Northwestern meet at Chicago did not amount to much. The speed in the running events and the distance in the jumps and weights was good, but not phenomenal. But it means that Director Butterworth is a corner when he can engineer an event in which over 200 athletes participate and eleven schools are interested. The meet was held in the First Regiment Armory in Chicago.

At Madison two indoor collegiate records were broken Saturday night. At the track meet in the "varsity gym" Post took the mile in 4:36, 2-5 of a second better than the record established by Hall at Champaign, Ill., two weeks before. In the half mile Breitkutz set a mark of 2:03 -5.

In the Milwaukee Expo building next Saturday the Amateur Athletic Union will hold its yearly meet. President Ligniger says that the entry list, which closed Saturday at midnight, is the largest in the history of the organization. Nearly all of the best athletes of the middle west are entered. All of the large clubs and colleges have had their men in training for the events for the past month.

Notable Bowling Tourney

In the history of bowling a more successful tournament has not been held than that just concluded at Indianapolis. Records were splintered right and left, and good scores were the rule. Of the teams the O'Learys and Wrigleys of Chicago made a magnificent showing. The latter five secured more sympathy than honor. It was only by missing a single pin in their last game that the championship slipped away from their grasp.

D. A. Jones of Milwaukee has received the eulogies of bowling authorities in all parts of the land for his fine showing. He not only has become national champion, but by three straight games at 232, 245, and 203 he reached a grand total of 683.

Will the American Bowling Congress live? Is a live question since the meet at Indianapolis. The entire absence of definite organization was a revelation to many. Those in control of the convention altered and revised constitution and by-laws at will, disregarding parliamentary usage in the conduct of the business meetings. For a supporting organization the Congress was shown to be painfully weak, and the reorganization is considered imperative.

After the howl was made by the loaded ball exponents before the convention they have accepted the situation with unthought resignation since a weight limit of 16½ pounds has been imposed. So decided has been the reaction toward a sphere of medium weight that it is prophesied that the loaded ball will be totally banished by the end of another year. That the compromise legislation was necessary for the welfare of the sport is generally agreed.

Cardinal Disappointed
Coach Banelin of the state university baseball team is regretting the decision of Duffy not to take the Milwaukee Western League team to Madison for the spring practice. Although the wisdom of the manager of the Creams in taking his colts to Champaign for preliminary work is not doubted, the loss in experience for the Cardinals will be great. Manager Kilpatrick will now attempt to secure the Rockford Three-Eye team for a series of practice games.

Coach Yost of Michigan recently made the statement, "No college has ever developed a championship team for three consecutive years, but we hope to do it."

In his annual report Pres. Elliott of Harvard spoke in a dubious tone of the recent changes in football. He says that it has become slower and less interesting. In regard to athletics in general he noticed many evils, but spoke of the general trend as decidedly beneficial, especially as they promote physical development and prevent effeminacy.

The greatest athletic event this side of the Atlantic during the present decade will be the Olympic games at St. Louis next year. For the first time since the games were established at the quadrennial festival of the Olympic Zeus at Ells, southwest of Athens, they will be held in this country. Chicago was first accorded the honor of conducting the games but it was later transferred to the world's fair management of St. Louis.

...Theatrical Notes...

There is a good story of doubtful origin which relates how a certain rustic who had been sent running after Lincoln's carriage by being told "there goes the biggest man in this country" returned with aching lungs and sad face to remark that "he wasn't near as big as Bill Jones." Similar misconstruction is said to have been put upon an idiom of the stage by a layman friend of William A. Brady at one of the rehearsals of "Pretty Peggy" in New York. This friend was standing in the wings with the manager when Robert Lorraine who makes David Garrick a sort of scoundrel in the piece, began a scene with Grace George. Mr. Lorraine is rather a handsome young fellow, but he is not troubled with much superfluous flesh. In pugilistic
